

PRODUCTS LIABILITY

The firm has represented manufacturers, distributors, and retailers in numerous industries which confront either individual or class actions in state and federal courts. In recent cases, the firm has represented clients in mass tort litigation involving drugs and medical devices. The firm has also been involved extensively in the defense of tobacco products and toxic torts in South Florida.

Medical product liability claims are often among the most complex because of the technical nature of evidence. We know the medical issues involved and the independent specialists to call on to investigate and prepare the strongest defense possible for court. We will provide aggressive litigation defense for medical device manufacturers, hospitals and health care providers.
